Trypanosoma brucei is a non-septic trypanosome parasite which causes African sleeping sickness in humans and nagana in African domestic animals. It causes a lethal infection in the tsetse fly vector and a chronic disease in the mammalian host. All stages of the parasite are transmitted via its insect vector. The development of drugs for the treatment of sleeping sickness is severely limited by problems related to the inability to culture the parasite and to develop suitable animal models for efficacy testing. The development of systems to regulate T. brucei expression of genes in the insect midgut would lead to the development of new methods to control the parasite by manipulating its development and infectivity in the insect vector. This project aims to develop an insect model for control of T. brucei by creating trypanosome variants which fail to use host GSH for their survival in the gut of tsetse flies. For this purpose, T. brucei genes encoding glutathione S-transferase and glutamate-cysteine ligase have been disrupted by homologous recombination in the genome of the pathogenic trypanosome variant AnTat 1.1. The ability of the knock-out parasites to replicate in the gut of tsetse flies will be determined. Development of protection against these trypanosomes in the tsetse will be assessed by measuring the density of the parasite in the blood meal and the infection rate in the fly. Target genes will be re-expressed to confirm that the lack of GSH metabolism in the parasite is responsible for loss of the ability to infect the insect. The study will be extended to attempt to disrupt the T. brucei GSH and folate metabolism pathways using a similar strategy.

A man who fled the scene of a New Westminster double murder and pepper-sprayed a female officer as she tried to arrest him says the police should get used to being “pelted” with food and coins. On May 6, the New Westminster Police Department got a call from a neighbour that a man was shooting at him and his wife. article continues below

Officers tracked the suspect in the 900 block of Larch Street, where they eventually came across a man and a woman wounded and needing medical attention. Both the couple and the man injured in the initial confrontation were taken to hospital. The woman, who was believed to be the mother of the couple's children, was pronounced dead at the scene

What's New In Photoshop CC 2015 Version 16?

After an early drop in the polls, presidential candidate Sen. Bernie Sanders (I-VT) is currently in a statistical tie with Sen. Hillary Clinton (D-NY) in the crucial state of New Hampshire. But a new Monmouth University poll released Wednesday shows a huge shift in the standing of the candidates. The debate over which candidate will be the Democratic nominee is now a dead heat in the Granite State. From June 1 to July 15, Clinton enjoyed a 9-point lead over Sanders in New Hampshire, 49 percent to 40 percent, according to the latest poll. But in the last two weeks of the campaign, the gap has narrowed considerably. Clinton's lead in the national polls has shrunk to just 5 points, but in the Granite State she is up by 14 points, 53 percent to 39 percent. Clinton is leading in the state of New Hampshire because she has name recognition, network appearances and a wide array of endorsements. She has a much larger donor base than

Sanders, who is fighting to build momentum, and her campaign has purchased more TV advertising than her opponent's. Follow Kevin on Twitter Send tips to kevin@dailycallernewsfoundation.org. Q: My sister's visa issue is on hold after several months in the UK My sister was in the UK on a temporary visa (for a six months) and it expired in October 2016, she stayed till January 2017 (after 6 months it should have expired) and it has not been renewed for another 6 months. I have been speaking to an Immigration Officer and they have told me the only reason it has not been renewed is because of administrative error and not because my sister has violated any rules. I am confused as to why does my sister's visa has been on hold for more than half a year, as it seems like she has not done anything wrong, and the only reason it has been on hold is because of administrative error. Does this mean she will be let in? The Immigration
